

FLASH, BANG, WALLOP, WHAT A PICTURE!

Flash photography is often perceived to be a difficult thing but last night's enjoyable and instructive session led by Graham Currey did a lot to dispel that feeling. Graham is a "multi talented individual" (his words!), not only a professional photographer, educator, web designer, model and actor.

Having set up a very simple lighting and setting, Graham had the members set up their cameras for the shoot. Again, very simple. He then took us through a number of lighting scenarios and for each one he became both model and instructor. We firstly met the gun slinging cowboy and lastly the somewhat menacing mobster!!

Meetings can be quite static as guests or members present from the front of the room but last night, members milled around taking their turn to have a go and, most, smiled with satisfaction (and some with surprise) when they looked at the excellent images that they had captured. Having broken the ice of studio portraiture there was quite an enthusiasm to practice the skills further in the future.

You can find more about Graham, and his work, on Facebook or and on www.sessiondays.co.uk.